Operations

Trudy is Clayton & McKerverve's vice president of operations, overseeing the firm's human resources, finance and administration. She started her career with Clayton & McKerverve in 1995 in client services, and moved into operations in 2008. In her current position, she works closely with the ownership team, monitoring and directing the internal operations and growth of the firm in the areas of human resources, finance, technology and administration. Her background in the firm's Accounting Services Group provided the right foundation for her role.
